The AIDF has an APRA exemption from certain requirements of the Banking Act 1959. Neither the controlling entity nor the AIDF is prudentially supervised by APRA. Contributions to the AIDF do not enjoy the benefit of investor protection under the Banking Act 1959. The AIDF has an exemption and reporting concessions from Australian Securities and Investment Commission (ASIC). The AIDF is not subject to the usual prospectus and trust deed requirements of the law. The AIDF is required to lodge annual audited financial statements with the ASIC but has not been examined or approved by ASIC. Investment in the Fund is designed for investors who wish to assist the Fund in its charitable work and for whom profit is not of primary relevance. Monies lodged with the Fund are backed by the AIDF's reserves and Anglican Diocese of Canberra and Goulburn guarantees repayment of monies on demand. The AIDF is an Ethical investment and not for profit charity.
